DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 8-16 and 43-52 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ress et al in view of Moir. Claims are unpatentable for the same reasons set forth in pages 2-3 in the prior office action of 10-27-2005.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 03-01-2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Art Unit: 3742

Applicant's remarks advance that to incorporate the fusion reactor of Moir, as a source of particles for the Moir device is unethical. Claim 8 defines generating charged particles with a fusion device. Clearly, Moir does the same. Figure 1 in Moir depicts a fusion source 11 creating a charged particle source 12, which is the used to create electricity directly from the plasma beam or source. Applicant's instant invention works the same. The instant invention uses an enhancement system for the particles to focus the same and increase the efficiency of the electrical conversion, using a magnetic system clearly set forth in Ress et al, as referenced in the above rejection. One of ordinary skill in the art would have found proper motivation in the Moir teaching, to use a fusion source as the charged particle source. Such is conventional, as the prior art of record in the instant application clearly sets forth. Applicants own specification, in the background of the Inventing, references numerous patents representing prior art, which depict different schemes for particle sources, such as fusion, cathode sources, etc. The use of a particular source to supply the charged particles to the claimed device is a choice for the artisan, all of the claimed sources being conventional. The crux of the instant invention relies on the confinement system for the particles, and the structure of this confinement system is rendered obvious by the prior art applied, as set forth above. The patent to Moir is merely relied on for evidencing that use of a fusion device, as a charged particle source is conventional and obvious.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
